Profile - Matching Control

69

I wished to be matched into one or more groups in the following manner:

Permit only the computer to match me into group(s) ☐

Also permit people to match me into a group(s) ☐ (also called Custom Groups)

(i.e., users have the option to develop custom groups by selecting matching criteria to be used to select user profiles within the profile database. For example, if a user wishes to establish a golf group, they would select "golf" as the selection criteria in the User Develop Group section of this system)

No longer make my profile available to people other than my current groups: ☐

Remove my profile from all groups even including my current groups: ☐

The interface features a vertical sidebar on the left with the following buttons: Home, Profile, Create Groups, View Groups, Modify Groups, Schedule Groups, Bulletin Board, and Chat Room. The main content area is titled "Modify Groups" (32). Below the title, there is a "Group name:" label followed by a text input field and a dropdown arrow (95). Below this is a label "To revise name, enter new name here:" followed by another text input field (97). Further down is the label "Current Group Listing:" (99) followed by a table. The table has three columns: "Name", "City", and "Email Address". The table is empty with a scrollbar on the right. Below the table, there is a label "Enter email addresses of the people you wish to delete below:" followed by three pairs of text input fields (101). Below this, there is a label "Click here if you'd like the computer to help you find some new members for your group, else just enter the email address of the people you'd like to add below: (they must already be on the profile database)" (107). This is followed by three pairs of text input fields (103). At the bottom, there is a button labeled "MODIFY GROUP" (105).
